

Following the Longhorn mold

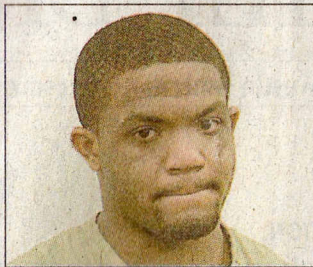

Okam might be the next great tackle from Texas

SPORTS

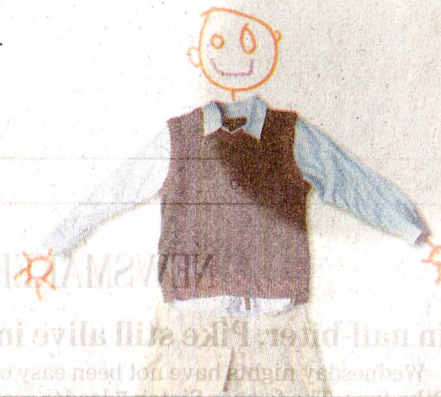

More trouble with law for ex-Buckeyes phenom

SPORTS

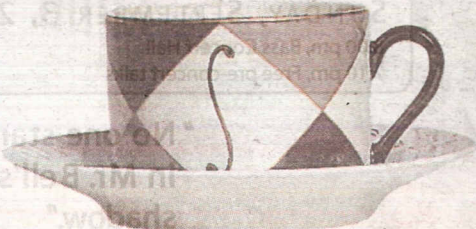

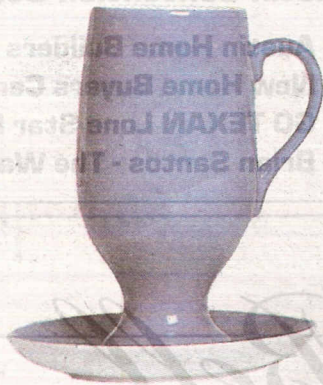

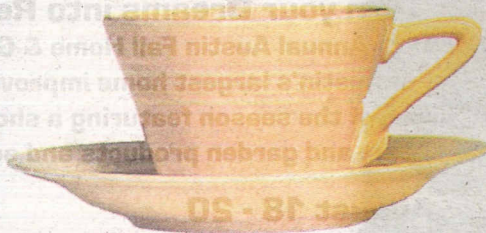

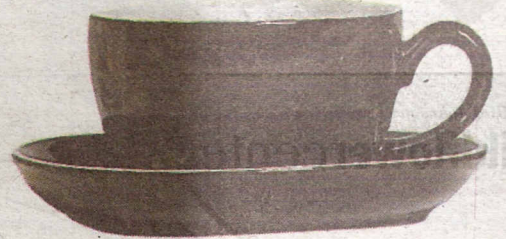

Want to save on school clothes? Try resale shops

LIFE & STYLE

Austin American-Statesman

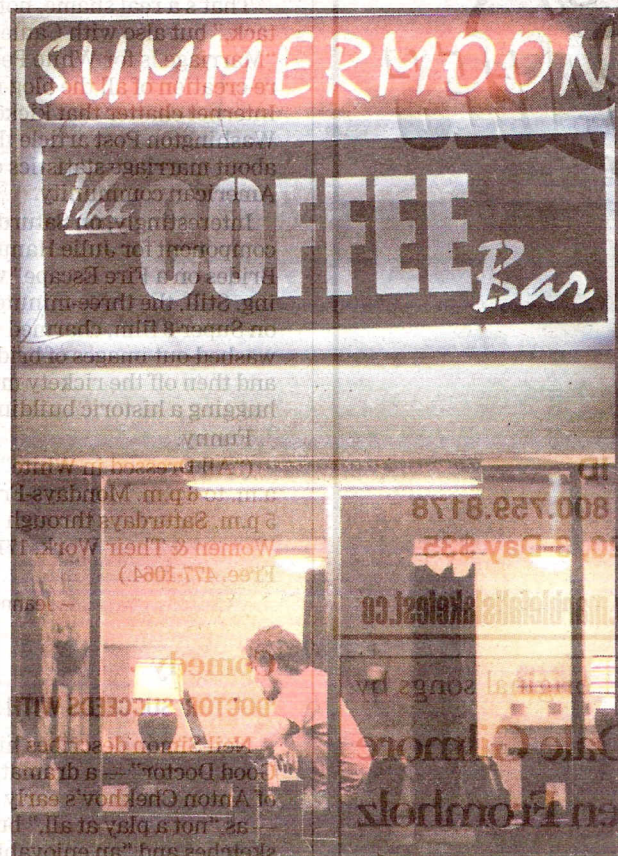

ENT

Life by the drop: Coffeehouse communities

BY ANDREA LORENZ (P. 14)

10 COFFEEHOUSES WHERE WE LOVE TO LINGER

Comfy chairs are part of the amenities at Summermoon.

SUMMERMUON

3115 S. First St., Suite 1B; 804-1665
www.woodfiredcoffee.com; free Wi-Fi

London coffeehouses in the 1600s helped spawn newspapers, when patrons came hungry for information and journalistic souls spread news from one shop to another. Today we have the Internet for that, but should we desire to feel paper in our hands, Summermoon would be the place. Every chair is cushy, and there's always a free table. The music is low, and the few conversations taking place aren't loud. Recent law-school graduates Patty Chang and Julie Pandya rely on Summermoon to get them through hours of reading to prepare for the bar exam. 'Other places, my butt starts hurting,' Chang says. Plus, with the stone wall in the middle of the room and the lime-green plush table and chairs, it's almost like having coffee at the 'Brady Bunch' house.